

---

NETHERLANDS

---

Cycle paths and cyclists everywhere

We found it easier to go on campsites in the Netherlands as they are everywhere. The campsites that say mini camping are great they are chilled and let you put your tent up anywhere, not loads of rules, a good price and all the facilities you need.

Wild camping was a little difficult though we found a few places whilst out in the farming areas and we also stayed at a few farms as we asked the land owner if we could put up our tent. The Dutch people are lovely and really friendly and always said yes.

We cycled all the time on the cycle paths and followed the cycle routes so easy and flat everywhere. We even experienced the cycling round about in the sky Hovenring in Eindhoven. Cycling the flat and constantly being told where to cycle got a little boring and not challenging enough so when we got back onto the roads it was much better for us. You can see which route we cycled on our live tracker "Track Us" page.

---

Picture above is in the center of Amsterdam

---

The picture below is us wild camping somewhere in the bushes.

